Dawson Springs, Hopkins County, Kentucky 42408, Thursday, January 3, 2013

SEVENTY-FIVE CENTS

IT wasn't quite a blizzard as some places had, but this area collected about two-and-a-half inches of snow early Wednesday, Dec. 26, which was more snow than we saw all last winter. Parts of Western Kentucky, Southern Indiana and Southern Illinois received from 8-18 inches during the storm. Ronnie Haile (right) and his son Ronnie cleared the area around R & D Service Center on Arcadia Avenue that morning.

HEALTHY KENTUCKY SURVEY

Parents Need To Talk To Children Concerning Health

One New Year's resolution that should be on all parents' lists is to talk to their kids about health related issues in 2013. Parents have more influence in a child's development than anyone else, and discussing their views on health helps to shape their children's behavior. The Foundation for a Healthy Kentucky released results from its Kentucky Parent Survey about how often parents talk to their children about certain health issues. The survey found that:

•More than half (53 percent) had shared their views on smoking or tobacco use with their children often or all the time.

•Sixty-two percent of parents with older children said they had discussed their views on drug use often or all the time during the past year.

•Just 21 percent of parents of older children said they had discussed their views on birth control often or all the time during the past year.

"This is a New Year's resolution that parents can keep," said Susan Zepeda, president/CEO of the Foundation for a Healthy Kentucky. "Talk to your children about your views on dating and substance use and maintaining a healthy lifestyle."

Studies show parental monitoring and engagement can deter children from unhealthy behaviors and help improve their academic achievement. The Kentucky Parent Survey also asked parents about spending time with their kids and about how they learn to be good parents.

Additional survey highlights reveal:

•About one in three parents (33 percent) said they had played a sport, played a physical game or exercised with their child on five days during the preceding week.

•More than half (54 percent) reported watching television with their child on at least five days during the preceding week.

YEAR-END REVIEW OF FRONT PAGES

The Progress Looks Back At First Half Of 2012

This is the first of a two-part series reviewing the stories that appeared on the front page of The Progress in 2012. January through June will be reviewed today. July through December will appear next week.

JANUARY

Jan. 5 — Mayor Ross Workman submitted his resignation at a special called meeting of the Dawson Springs City Council. He is leaving office to take the position of lead interpreter and manager of Golden Pond Planetarium at Land Between the Lakes.

According to the Kentucky P-20 Data Collaborative, the Dawson Springs High School Class of 2010 saw 71.8 percent of its 39 graduates off to college. Public high school graduates for 2010 attended college at a rate of 63.1 percent, the highest percentage on record.

Jan. 12 — Jenny Sewell was appointed interim mayor of Dawson Springs by the city council at a special called meeting. She replaces Ross Workman who resigned one week earlier.

According to a recent poll, 64 percent of Kentuckians would vote in favor of a proposed constitutional amendment allowing casino gambling.

The statewide average precipitation total from the Kentucky Mesonet, the state's official source of climatological observations, exceeded 63 inches and placed 2011, along with 1979 and 1950, as the wettest years in Kentucky in more than a century.

Jan. 19 — The Dawson Springs Police Department is investigating a series of thefts involving vehicles and storage buildings on the east side of town.

Jenny Sewell was sworn in by District Judge Logan Calvert as mayor of Dawson Springs. She conducted her first city council meeting, sharing her priorities for the city.

Dawson Springs, along with Princeton and Eddyville, was selected to host the 2012 Kentucky Preservation Conference.

Jan. 26 — The Dawson Springs High School math department presented a proposal for changes in the curriculum to the SBDM Council. The proposed changes will allow students more time to master algebra skills before taking the mandated end-of-course Algebra II exam.

The Dawson Springs Board of Education passed a very tight 2012-2013 draft budget. Cuts in state funds have impacted school districts across the commonwealth.

Gov. Steve Beshear presented his biennial budget proposal, a budget he termed "inadequate for the needs of our people," to the 2012 General Assembly.

FEBRUARY

Feb. 2 — A Trail Town meeting was held for residents interested in seeing Dawson Springs become part of a trail system.

Sen. Jerry P. Rhoads filed legislation that would enable cities and counties to enter into agreements with private and public landowners to make property available for outdoor recreational use.

February was proclaimed Earthquake Awareness month. Feb. 7 is the 200th anniversary of the last of the earthquakes that destroyed the town of New Madrid, Mo., and created Reelfoot Lake in Tennessee.

Feb. 9 — Human remains believed to be those of Sherry

Hays, a Nebo resident reported missing in November, were found on McKnight Road.

Scotty Parsons Sr. filed declaration papers with the Kentucky Secretary of State seeking the position of state representative in the newly created 9th House District. (The redistricting was later overruled.)

The Dawson Springs Independent School System, along with the other public schools in Kentucky are preparing for the new state assessment known as K-PREP.

Feb. 16 — The Kentucky Department of Education announced the federal government has granted the state an exemption from the No Child Left Behind Act. The waiver was received because Kentucky has its own very high accountability system in place.

The Dawson Springs Chamber of Commerce approved plans for several community events including Derby for the Darby, a fund-raiser to benefit the Darby House; and a Fourth of July celebration with the annual fireworks display.

Feb. 23 — The city of Dawson Springs is one of 38

Kentucky communities receiving more than $1.8 million in grants to develop and maintain recreational trails across the state. Dawson Springs was awarded $12,896.

Deputy Punkin Arnett retired after 32 years in law enforcement, 22 as the D.A.R.E. officer in the Dawson Springs and Hopkins County school districts.

A 4.0 magnitude earthquake was reported near East Prairie, Mo. The quake rattled homes and buildings in four states, including Western Kentucky, but no injuries or significant damage was reported.

MARCH

March 1 — The Dawson Springs Independent School System will maintain the same number of positions for the 2012-2013 school year as for the current year. However, the calendar will include 185 rather than 187 days. Superintendent Alexis Seymour told the Board of Education the staff preferred to lose the two days rather than lose staff members.

The Dawson Springs City Council approved the use of a $5,000 grant for strategic planning. Work will begin later in March. The plan is expected to be completed in August.

Gov. Steve Beshear signed an executive order formally declaring a regional state of emergency in the destruction of a span of the Eggner's Ferry Bridge over Kentucky Lake.

March 8 — John and Lindsey Rogers became the city's newest business owners when they purchased Clark, Beshear and Clark Furniture and Appliances from previous owner Shelia Johnson.

The Dawson Springs City Council approved a change to the sidewalk and curb on Ramsey Street in front of Tradewater Health and Rehabilitation Center. The work will be done at the owners' expense.

In an e-mail to faculty and staff, Superintendent Alexis Seymour announced she will retire at the end of June.

March 15 — The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet has begun installing new Interstate 69 signage along the former Western Kentucky Parkway between Eddyville and the Pennyville Parkway interchange near Madisonville.

NATIONAL HEALTH PROBLEM

Radon Action Month Promotes Awareness

January is Radon Action Month. Health agencies throughout the United States have joined forces to promote awareness of the leading cause of lung cancer for nonsmokers. The American Lung Association, Centers for Disease Control and National Cancer Institute all agree radon is a national health problem and encourage radon testing during the January awareness drive.

Radon is a naturally-occurring, invisible and odorless radioactive gas. One in 15 American homes contains high levels of radon. Millions of Americans are unknowingly exposed to this dangerous gas. In fact, a recent study by Harvard University ranks radon as America's number one in-home hazard. By taking simple steps to test a home for radon and making necessary fixes, this health hazard can be avoided.

Radon gas is not isolated to certain geographical areas or home types. Radon problems have been detected in homes in every county of the U.S. It caused more American fatalities last year than carbon monoxide, fires and handguns combined. If a home hasn't been tested for radon in the past two years, EPA and the surgeon general urge taking that action. Information on locating qualified test kits or

KSP Asks For Public Help To Solve Unsolved Cases

Kentucky State Police is renewing efforts to solve unsolved cases by asking the public for assistance with leads. In 2010, KSP distributed more than 8,000 decks of playing cards to prisons across Kentucky depicting unsolved case information.

The deck of cards highlighted 52 unsolved Kentucky homicide or missing person cases. Since that time, three of those cases have been solved.

KSP hopes that sharing information with the public again will provide fresh leads that can help solve these cases and bring some closure to families.

Trooper Michael Webb reviews the leads as they come in and disseminates the information to local posts.

"We have received hundreds of tips in the past two years that we hope will lead to more cases being solved," said Webb. "Not only do these tips assist with solving cases, they sometimes provide additional information about other criminal activity taking place."

KSP has placed copies of the complete deck of cards on its Web site at http://www.kentuckystatepolice.org/unsolved_cases.htm.

A toll free tip line where tips can remain anonymous has also been established at 1-877-735-2648. The public can also submit tips at kyunsolved@ky.gov.

State Retailers Comply With Tobacco Sale Laws

Kentucky continues to make progress in limiting retail sales of tobacco to minors, according to a recently released survey from the Cabinet for Health and Family Services (CHFS).

The 2012 Annual Synar Buying Survey of Kentucky retail tobacco outlets showed that 94.4 percent of retailers complied with the law barring tobacco sales to anyone under the age of 18. The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control conducted the survey during the summer to measure the rate of illegal sales of tobacco to Kentucky youths. The survey was completed in cooperation with the Division of Behavioral Health in the Department for Behavioral Health, Developmental and Intellectual Disabilities.

"Reducing the prevalence of tobacco sales to minors is a crucial piece of our work to prevent youth smoking and tobacco use," said Commissioner of the Department for Public Health, Dr. Stephanie Mayfield Gibson. "The results of this survey indicate we're moving in the right direction. Fewer people are dependent on tobacco products because of the work of our substance abuse program, the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, the Department of Agriculture and the Office of Drug Control Policy."

Since the inception of the federal Synar program in 1997, Kentucky Synar retail violation rates have been consistently below the national rates. The national average for all years (1997-2012) is 15.8 percent, compared with 9.5 percent for Kentucky. While Kentucky's retail violation rates have greatly improved, youths still report that it is easy to obtain tobacco products from stores and from noncommercial sources such as an older friend, sibling or parent.

Tony Dehner, commissioner for the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, emphasized sized the importance of cooperation in the effort to effectively combat youth access to tobacco products in Kentucky.

"We at ABC consider our role in the annual survey extremely important in the combined effort to reduce youth access to tobacco. Through the checks we conduct, retailers get the message that Kentucky is serious about preventing sales to minors and many make sure to educate their staff on verifying the customer age. The prevention of underage tobacco sales helps to create safer and healthier communities," Dehner said.

"Kentucky once again has a low rate of noncompliance, which is an important step for us as we continue to reduce youth access to tobacco" said Van Ingram, executive director of the Office of Drug Control Policy (ODCP). "Through the efforts of the Regional Prevention Centers, the Division of Behavioral Health, ODCP, and ABC, the health of young Kentuckians is being improved by reducing the illegal use of tobacco products."

Federal law authorizes the Substance Abuse Prevention and Treatment (SAPT) Block Grant and requires states to enact and enforce laws designed to reduce the availability of tobacco products to people younger than 18. The state must conduct the Annual Buying Survey using a scientific random sample study protocol approved by the federal Center for Substance Abuse Prevention, and must demonstrate that its noncompliance rate does not exceed the target of 20 percent for illegal tobacco sales to minors.

The SAPT Block Grant, administered by CHFS, is the single largest funding stream in Kentucky supporting substance abuse prevention and treatment.

OBITUARIES

Services Are Held Saturday For Don Hancock, 74

The funeral for Don Hancock, 74, of Madisonville, formerly of Dawson Springs, was held Saturday at Barnett-Strother Funeral Home.

The Rev. Don McLaughlin officiated. Burial was in Grapevine Cemetery.

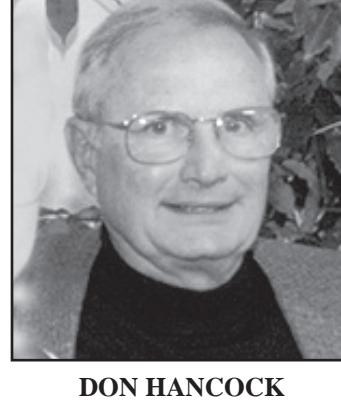

Hancock died Dec. 25, 2012, in Madisonville.

He was born in 1938 in Dawson Springs to the late Charles and Imogene Hancock.

He was a graduate of Dawson Springs High School and established the Western Kentucky branch of Thompson's Sanitary Supply House. He was a member of the First Christian Church of Madisonville.

In addition to his parents, he was preceded in death by his stepfather, Omer Menser, and a stepsister, Juanita Redman.

Survivors include his wife, Mary Haylee Hancock, Madisonville; a son, Chad Hancock, Lexington; a daughter, Haylee Coberly, Franklin,

DON HANCOCK

Tenn.; and four grandchildren.

Pallbearers were Charlie Ramsey, Bob Kik, Will Cox, Pete Bowles, Monty Cox and Bob Dampier.

Honorary pallbearers were Bill Cox, Bill Metcalfe, Walter Ferguson, Chuck Shockley, Mike Hovious and Tom Clayton.

Memorial contributions can be made to First Christian Church, 1030 College Drive, Madisonville, KY 42431.

Services Are Held Monday For Nellie Dillean Laffoon

Nellie Dillean Laffoon, 93, of Charleston, slipped past the earthly bounds and went to rest in the arms of Jesus on Friday, Dec. 28, 2012, at her home while surrounded by her children and grandchildren. She was born March 24, 1919, in Butler County, to the late William and Lossie Hack Pendley.

She married the love of her life, Lawrence Laffoon, on Nov. 15, 1941, only to be separated from Lawrence for three years while he was involved in World War II. To this union five children were born. Nellie loved to cook, sew, quilt, can foods, work word search puzzles, read, watch Nancy Grace on television, purchase gifts for her family and take care of each family member. Having been given the privilege to attend school through the eighth grade, she longed to have been able to finish high school. Consequently, she insisted all her children complete high school.

She and her husband owned and operated a grocery store in Charleston in the 1940s. Nellie was of the Pentecostal faith, and she was a Sunday school teacher for many years at the former Walnut Grove Pentecostal Church in Dawson Springs.

Nellie once shared with her family that she did not know why God let her live so long. And she went on to say, "I guess it is to love my family." As her years advanced and her physical health and abilities deteriorated, she never once complained and even commented that she felt it would be a sin to complain. She appreciated her life each and every day.

Nellie is survived by three sons, Lawrence Laffoon Jr., of Dawson Springs, Jimmy Laffoon and Danny Laffoon, both of Charleston; one daughter, Mary Ann Laffoon of Charleston; seven grandchildren and their spouses; 12 great-grandchildren; one aunt, Edna Jordan, of Lexington; two close cousins, Heneretta Eldridge, of Princeton, and Patsy Norris, of Dawson Springs; and several nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her parents; her husband of 59 years, Lawrence Laffoon (2001); a son, David Laffoon (1998); a brother, Wilbur Pendley; a sister, Bobbie Beard; and a grandson Matthew Laffoon (2001). A few months prior to her death, she made the statement that she was ready to go be with her husband, son and other family members in heaven.

The funeral was held at 2 p.m. Dec. 31, 2012, at Beshear Funeral Home.

New Regulations Announced For Mold Removal Firms

Attorney General Jack Conway announced the implementation of new regulations for mold remediation companies operating in Kentucky. The regulation completes the implementation of a law designed to better protect consumers who utilize mold removal services.

"The new regulation will help to ensure that consumers are informed about mold and the standards for mold remediation in Kentucky before they hire a mold remediation company," Conway said. "I believe these new standards are a good first step to increasing consumer protection for households seeking the services of a mold remediation company. I also want to stress to consumers the importance of fixing the water problem that is causing the mold. Without corrective measures, the mold will return."

Some of the protections and requirements of the new mold remediation regulation include:

-A written mold assessment and remediation plan must be given to the customer before entering into a contract. The plan must include a price estimate, describe the extent of the mold problem and the scope of the work and explain how the work will be evaluated. It must also state how the source of moisture will be remedied or managed, or that it has not been identified.

-Other general information must be given to the customer before entering into a contract, about mold, the benefits of using an independent indoor environmental professional and the source of moisture related to the mold problem.

-A written contract is required before work begins, and change orders must be signed by the customer if there is additional cost or a substantive change to the plan.

-Mold contamination must be physically removed and the remediated area must be returned to a clean condition.

-Any post-remediation verification must be performed by an indoor environmental professional paid directly by and reporting directly to the customer.

-The mold remediation company must make sure that its employees have training, education and experience to perform the tasks and use the equipment, tools and materials that will be used on the project.

The mold remediation law requires all mold remediation companies operating in Kentucky to follow the minimum standards established in the regulation, and allows customers to file complaints with the Attorney General's Office if they believe a mold remediation company is not following those standards.

ABOUT TOWN

By Scott

Many Factors Were Considered

It wasn't easy — but it wasn't that hard either.

The decision to sell The Progress was not made without considering many different things. These included, but not necessarily limited to or in this order: my family, our future, the future of The Progress, our readers, and last but certainly not least, the community of Dawson Springs.

Because all these factors were considered, I have no doubt there could be no better new owner of The Dawson Springs Progress than Chip Hutcheson and The Times Leader, Inc.

One of the first things Chip asked me when we were in early stages of talking was what it is I want to do.

After expressing myself, which of course included playing some golf, he let me know more than likely there would not be a deal if that deal did not include me staying on as publisher and Carolyn and Faye remaining as employees.

When we first started talking, I wasn't sure how far the talks would go or how far I was really willing to take this. But that all changed, and in my heart I knew The Times Leader would be good for the future of The Progress and for the Dawson Springs community.

Many of you have expressed sorrow, congratulations and everything in between concerning the sale of The Progress. And some of you have asked what I think my dad and brother would think, as well as what Mom thinks.

One thing I'm certain of — at least as certain as I can be — Jed and Dad would have thought this was the correct decision. Much of that thought is based on Mom and her comments to me about selling the paper. But other reasons I think they would agree are from some of the talks Jed and I had before about selling The Progress.

There have been previous suitors, and all of them came through Jed. We discussed the option and both agreed that when the time was right then we would sell.

The time was right.

There might be some changes coming down the road for The Progress but I'm certain they will all be for the good of this newspaper and ultimately for the community.

One of those will be in the classifieds. In the not so distant future our readers and advertisers will have a much more comprehensive classified section.

Another change will be in single copy sales. The Progress will be available at more locations and racks will be upgraded.

However, one of those changes which will not happen any sooner than if The Progress had remained owned by the Dillingham family is price increases.

A lady called last week and wanted to let me know she was sending in her subscription renewal right away. Her subscription expired Jan. 1, and she didn't want to miss an issue — at least that was part of the reason she wanted to assure me the payment was forthcoming.

She went on to say, "I read where you have sold the paper, and I want to get it in before the price goes up."

It's been said before, but can never be said enough, The Progress would never have been in your hands without the efforts of Carolyn and Faye, as well as my cousin Laura. Then in the background, doing many different things in support of The Progress has been another cousin, Kent. Thanks to them and to all the wonderful former employees who made this newspaper what it is.

Happy New Year! Here are some things we hope to see in the new year...

—Politicians who care more for the good of the United States of America than for their own re-election.

—More compassion for everyone.

—Less finger pointing at others.

—A new organization, perhaps even a super PAC with millions of dollars in donations, to counter an opposing one we already have. This would be a group of very well meaning citizens, composed of responsible sportsmen and gun owners. They could leverage members of Congress with cash or threats of being voted out for not being responsible about gun ownership.

If they need a name, may I suggest National Establishment Willing To Oppose Assault Weapons Now.

They could call themselves NEWTOWN for short.

—More birdies and eagles and maybe even a hole-in-one.

—Another NCAA basketball champion from Kentucky.

—More peace, joy and happiness and most of all contentment in all our lives.

Let's end this with some jokes. Chip and Jed used to laugh about borrowing and/or stealing jokes from each other. But from now on I don't have to worry about that, since you could say these were and are his now...

COMMENTARY

Government

Needs Improvement

By

Lee Hamilton
Director, Center on Congress
at Indiana University

We are locked in a seemingly permanent debate over the proper size and scope of government. It was a centerpiece of the recent presidential campaign. It features heavily in the ongoing maneuvering over the "fiscal cliff" and the upcoming vote on raising the debt ceiling. And it surfaces regularly in the speeches and comments of politicians and opinion leaders who either take the government to task for growing too large or argue that it needs to play an even more active role than it does now.

I don't expect this argument to end anytime soon — after all, it's been a feature of political life for as long as any of us can remember. But no matter how we view the role of government, there's one thing most of us do agree on: whatever government does, it should do it well.

Recently, I read a compelling speech by a prominent corporate CEO who criticized the federal government for creating an environment of uncertainty and stifling the engines of market growth — and then went on to lay out plans for economic renewal that all involved the government: a revamped education policy, more investment in infrastructure and in basic research, changes to the tax code to reward innovation. His speech underscores a basic truth about American life: we can argue about the fine points of its reach, but the importance of government's role in our lives is inescapable.

This does not mean that government is the answer to everything — far from it. Nor, however, does the anti-government rhetoric that so often marks our politics show much sign of being rooted in reality. When we want to build roads and bridges, operate schools and keep our cities safe, create conditions under which businesses can thrive, respond to natural disasters or attacks on our security, we turn to government at some level. And we expect the people who run it — the leaders as well as those on the front lines — to be good at what they do.

As Alexander Hamilton put it, "A government ill-executed, whatever may be the theory, in practice is poor government."

Call For Guns

At School Obscene

The National Rifle Association's obscene suggestion to fight school gun violence with more guns in schools doesn't seem to be getting much traction.

Offered in the wake of the Newtown, Conn., elementary school massacre that shocked the nation, the idea has drawn widespread condemnation and even ridicule.

"NRA: if we banned schools there would never be another school shooting," said comedian Seth Meyers in a Twitter post.

But just in case anyone likes the idea of putting armed police officers in every school in the nation and supplementing them with an NRA-trained volunteer corps of weapon-wielding vigilantes, Bill Bond, the former principal of Paducah's Heath High School, has some thoughts.

And he speaks from real-life experience right here in Kentucky.

Heath High was the scene of a 1997 school shooting where three students were killed and five wounded when an emotionally disturbed student opened fire with weapons he earlier had smuggled into school.

"In the shooting at my high school where three girls were killed and five other students were shot, I don't know that an armed security guard would have prevented what happened there," Mr. Bond told National Public Radio. "Because from the time I heard the shot till I was able to take the weapon from the student was a span of 12 seconds. And in that 12 seconds he had already hit eight students. So a security guard could have done the same thing had he been in the same location I was but it still would have been casualties."

Now does Mr. Bond, now a school safety specialist with the National Association of Secondary School Principals, embrace the notion of arming principals, teachers or community volunteers at schools.

"During a school shooting, kids are running. Some are laying on the floor and some are just standing dazed," he said. "Just finding the shooter is a difficult situation."

Two armed police officers on campus at Colorado's Columbine High School failed to prevent two students from killing 12 students and one teacher and injuring 21 others in 1999 before they committed suicide.

But facts don't get in the way of the NRA, which purports to represent hunters and other lawful gun owners but

MOMENTS IN TIME

• On Jan. 6, 1759, a 26-year-old George Washington marries Martha Dandridge Custis. Historical documents have revealed that Martha may not have been the great love of Washington's life. He wrote cryptic yet passionate love letters to Sally Fairfax, the wife of his friend George Fairfax.

• On Jan. 1, 1863, a farmer named Daniel Freeman submits the first claim under the new Homestead Act for a property near Beatrice, Neb. By the 1890s, many homesteaders found that farming 160 acres of such dry land was nearly impossible. At least half of the original homesteaders abandoned their claims.

• On Jan. 3, 1924, British archaeologist Howard Carter and his workers discover the solid-gold coffin holding the mummy of the boy-king Pharaoh Tutankhamen, preserved for more than 3,000 years.

• On Jan. 5, 1945, Japanese pilots receive the first order to become kamikaze, meaning "divine wind" in Japanese. Most of Japan's top pilots were dead, but youngsters needed little training to take planes full of explosives and crash them into ships. At Okinawa, they sank 30 ships and killed almost 5,000 Americans.

• On Jan. 4, 1965, in his State of the Union address, President Lyndon Johnson lays out for Congress a list of legislation needed to achieve his plan for a Great Society. His list included the creation of Medicare/Medicaid, Head Start, the Voting Rights Act and the Civil Rights Act.

• On Dec. 31, 1972, Roberto Clemente, future Hall of Fame baseball player, is killed along with four others when the cargo plane in which he is traveling crashes off the coast of Puerto Rico. At the end of September, Clemente had gotten his 3,000th hit in the final game of the season for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

• On Jan. 2, 1980, in response to the December 1979 Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, President Jimmy Carter asks the Senate to postpone action on the SALT II nuclear weapons treaty. Carter feared that the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan could lead to the USSR gaining control over much of the world's oil supplies.

Governor Signs Emergency Regulations To Ban Sale Of Synthetic Cannabinoids

Gov. Steve Beshear signed emergency regulations to place newly identified synthetic cannabinoids under Schedule 1 of the Kentucky Controlled Substances Act.

The action represents the first time synthetic substances have been banned by administrative regulation instead of by statute, a change allowed by the passage of House Bill 481 in the 2012 session.

"This measure lets us keep pace with backyard chemists who try to skirt the law by manipulating the formulas of dangerous substances," Beshear said. "And it gives us the tools to respond to threats as soon as they are identified."

Sponsored by Rep. John Tilley, of Hopkinsville, the law broadened the scope of banned substances to include entire classes of synthetic drugs, not just compounds. That change addressed the problem of manufacturers slightly altering the formula of a banned drug to get around laws outlawing a specific substance. And allowing these classes to be identified by regulation instead of state law lets counties and law enforcement respond promptly to new drugs.

"When the General Assembly began tackling the growing epidemic of synthetic drugs, it became clear that we needed a quicker mechanism to take them off the shelves before they could get a foothold in our communities," said Tilley. "This streamlined process will save lives and give law enforcement a powerful tool no matter how this battlefield changes. I'm proud I could play a role in helping to make this possible."

The Kentucky Office of Drug Control Policy, in collaboration with the Kentucky State Police Crime Lab, identified new synthetic cannabinoids that were not listed in statute as Schedule 1 substances, and requested the Cabinet for Health and Family Services to use its authority to classify the chemicals as Schedule 1 substances.

Also under the law, drug forfeiture laws that apply to other illegal substances could be used to prosecute people who sell synthetics. Retailers could be fined twice the amount of profit they made from selling the products, and those convicted of selling the drugs could lose their liquor licenses.

Because the regulations are designated as emergency, they are effective immediately.

Obscene

is heavily funded by the gun industry and is dedicated to dismantling any meaningful effort at firearms control.

In fact, facts are the enemy of the organization, according to Tom Diaz, a former gun owner and former NRA member who now works for the Violence Policy Center and has written extensively about the NRA and the gun lobby.

"The gun industry realized that it really loses every argument where you can have facts," he recently told NPR.

That would explain some of the cockamamie ideas of Wayne LaPierre, NRA executive vice president, when he called a Dec. 21 press conference to announce the NRA's grand solution to preventing school massacres such as the one at Newtown on Dec. 14 that killed 20 young children and six adults.

Mr. LaPierre would:

• Demonize people suffering from mental illness.

"Our society is populated by an unknown number of genuine monsters, people so deranged, so evil, so possessed by voices and driven by demons that no sane person can possibly ever comprehend them," said Mr. LaPierre in a rambling statement so bizarre it was later called paranoid and delusional.

His solution? Create an "active, national database of the mentally ill."

Right, Mr. LaPierre. We could do that after Congress authorizes a national database to track firearms transactions, a move the NRA has steadfastly opposed.

• Blame it on violent video games — "vicious, violent video games" that are the "filthiest form of pornography," Mr. LaPierre said.

What he omitted are the deep ties video game makers have with gun manufacturers to market their products, with those same gun merchants being big financial supporters of the NRA, according to The New York Times. This would appear to make the NRA a partner in that filthy pornography, a circumstance Mr. LaPierre did not address.

• Give the "good guys" guns. "The only thing that stops a bad guy with a gun is a good guy with a gun," Mr. LaPierre said.

But what if the bad guy didn't have a gun? Or at least, couldn't get hold of an assault rifle or assault-style rounds of bullets? What if Congress enacted meaningful controls over such weapons and ammunition, closed the gun show loophole and gave the federal law enforcement officials true power to track firearms transactions?

This is where Congress needs to start and not be side-tracked by a silly industry proposal to turn public schools into a sort of Wild West saloon, where disputes are settled with gunfights and the person with most firepower wins.

The NRA is skilled at stalling and distraction. They have succeeded, after other mass shootings — and there have been many — to deflect the public debate from gun control.

Following the massacre of 20 children and six adults at the Connecticut elementary school, they should succeed no more.

The Progress Looks Back At Front Pages From 2012

State mandated testing began last week with juniors across the commonwealth taking the ACT which is now included in a school's accountability.

March 22 — Superintendent Alexis Seymore ended Monday night's board of education meeting with an official announcement that she will retire effective June 30. She had informed staff and board members of her intentions earlier this month.

The Kentucky Department of Parks has entered into an agreement to launch a long-term energy savings project at nine of its resort parks, including Pennyrile Forest State Resort Park. Energy efficient lighting, water systems, heating, ventilation and air conditioning, and other conservation measures will be installed.

The city council approved an ordinance that will allow golf carts to be driven on some city streets. However, the ordinance may later be rescinded because of concerns about liability.

March 29 — Mayor Jenny Sewell and the Dawson Springs Museum and Art Center board learned the museum will receive a $457,000 grant for a rehabilitation project.

Average gasoline prices in Kentucky were $3.88 per gallon this week. Gas prices in Dawson Springs were $3.89 per gallon.

Numerous local houses were decked out in school colors showing support for UK and U of L who will play in the NCAA Final Four this weekend.

APRIL

April 5 — A Hopkins County grand jury indicted Joshua and Stephanie Osborne of Nebo on charges of complicity to commit murder and tampering with physical evidence in connection with the death of Sherry Hays. Hays' remains were discovered on McKnight Road near Dawson Springs.

Gov. Steve Beshear announced the Federal Highway Administration approved $9 million in emergency relief funding for the repair and reopening of the Eggers Ferry Bridge. The bridge is expected to be open to traffic by May 28.

April 12 — The Dawson Springs Airport Board was awarded a $250,000 grant for a Standard Erosion Control project.

Kentucky State Police reported 2012 has already seen a spike in motorcycle-related crashes with a 69 percent increase from the same time period in 2011.

The spring SUDS (Spruce Up Dawson Springs) campaign, which was once an annual event, was reinstated by the city council. For the next week, local residents will have a number of opportunities to dispose of unwanted items.

April 19 — Three members of the junior class were selected for the Governor's Scholars program. Ryan Caudill, Elizabeth Black and McCade Freeman will represent Dawson Springs High School.

The first reading of an ordinance which will end the use of city stickers was read at the April city council meeting. The council had voted several months before to discontinue the stickers.

A superintendent search firm, Leadership Strategies Group of Bowling Green, has been hired to assist in finding a replacement for retiring superintendent Alexis Seymore.

April 26 — The fire department responded to the Wingo Apartments at 105 E. Hall St. to extinguish a blaze originating in the kitchen in Candice Spinks' apartment. The other three apartments in the building sustained smoke damage.

A newly formed steering committee has begun the strategic planning process for economic development in Dawson Springs.

Principal Terry Hayes said a preliminary report of ACT scores indicated the juniors outscored the previous year's class on the college entrance exam.

MAY

May 3 — Derby for the Darby, which included stick horse races, games and a ladies' luncheon, was held as a fundraiser for the Darby House. The derby is expected to become an annual event.

The Dawson Springs Police Department is investigating the vandalism of three vehicles parked near the school bus compound. The vehicles belonged to students who were away on the senior trip.

A female body found by hunters in the old Homestead Mines in Nortonville has been identified as Brenda Phelps. Phelps, 35, was reported missing from her home in the Nortonville area March 31.

May 10 — The funeral for Dr. Joe D. Winfrey, 81, was held at the Primitive Baptist Church. Winfrey practiced dentistry in Dawson Springs from 1958 to 1998.

A graveside service was held for retired local businessman Michael Ray Midkiff, 66. Midkiff owned and operated Mike's IGA Foodliner for 34 years.

Superintendent Alexis Seymore announced that the Dawson Springs School System will begin participating in the Community Eligibility Option during the 2012-2013 school year. The federal program will allow all students in the local system to eat breakfast and lunch free of charge.

May 17 — Take Kids Fishing Day was held at Riverside Park for children ages 3 to 15.

Judicial Branch employees learned they will be furloughed for three days in the first half of FY 2013 as a result of deep budget cuts. Courthouses statewide will close Aug. 6, Sept. 4 and Oct. 15.

The annual spring band concert was postponed as a result of a power outage caused when a bird was caught in a regulator at the substation behind Food Giant.

May 24 — Fifty students received diplomas at Dawson Springs High School's 103rd commencement. Scholarships totaling $105,550 were announced.

The Dawson Springs Board of Education approved a tentative budget which included severe cuts in state funding. Preschool funds were slashed by more than half.

The Dawson Springs City Council took the final steps to abolish city stickers. Following a second reading, the council approved the amended ordinance striking the requirement.

May 31 — Ten applications have been received for the superintendent's position in the Dawson Springs School System.

A Level I drought has been declared for three drought management areas in Western Kentucky. The declaration includes Hopkins and surrounding counties.

The first City of Dawson Springs Poker Run will benefit the Darby House. Plans are for the run to become an annual event with proceeds going to a city agency most in need of funds.

JUNE

June 7 — Kent Dillingham and Punkin Web-Arnett received a Phoenix Award from the Lyon County EMS for their actions in saving the life of a Missouri man camping at Land

Between the Lakes.

TRAD North America Inc. plans to invest $10.8 million in production upgrades for its Hopkinsville operation which consists of two plants employing 410 people.

Kentucky State Police began a summer enforcement campaign focusing on traveling safety, decreasing speed in work zones, and enforcement of speed, DUI and occupant protection.

June 14 — Jeffery R. Alfred, 26, of Dawson Springs, was indicted by a Caldwell County grand jury for murder, DUI, leaving the scene of an accident/failure to render aid, and failure to maintain insurance. The charges stem from a wreck on Dec. 27, 2011, that claimed the life of Thomas A. Redden, also of Dawson Springs.

The screening committee in the search for the next school superintendent has presented the Dawson Springs Board of Education with four finalists. A decision is expected before the end of the month.

Five contestants are set to compete in the 2012 Miss Dawson Springs Pageant. They are Whitney Alexander, Hannah Ivy, Kaila Purdy, Marisa Trover and Halee VanVactor.

June 21 — Charles Proffitt was named superintendent of the Dawson Springs Independent School System replacing Alexis Seymore. Proffitt has worked in the system since 2006, most recently as assistant superintendent.

Kaila Purdy, a DSHS junior, was crowned Miss Dawson Springs 2012.

The junior-senior high SBD Council approved a Bring Your Own Device Policy allowing students to access the school network using their own electronic devices.

One adult and two juveniles, all of Slaughters, have been charged with multiple concession stand burglaries, including the stand in the Dawson Springs Municipal Park.

June 28 — A four-year contract for newly hired school superintendent Charles Proffitt was approved by the board of education. The contract includes a yearly salary of $86,000.

All outdoor burning in Hopkins County is prohibited until further notice as a result of weather conditions and the extreme danger of forest fires.

Madisonville Community College will provide dual credit courses for local high school students. The program will help students make the transition from high school to college.

Gasoline Prices Are Rising

Average retail gasoline prices in Kentucky have risen 7.3 cents per gallon in the past week, averaging $3.31 Sunday, based on GasBuddy's daily survey of 2,623 gas outlets in Kentucky. This compares with the national average that has increased 3 cents in the past week to $3.27 per gallon, according to gasoline price Web site GasBuddy.com.

Gas prices in Dawson Springs as of Monday morning were $3.19 a gallon, 13 cents less than one week ago.

Including the change in gas prices in Kentucky during the past week, prices Sunday were 6.2 cents per gallon higher than the same day one year ago and are 8.4 cents per gallon lower than a month ago. The national average has decreased 13.2 cents per gallon during the last month and stands 1.7 cents per gallon higher than this day one year ago.

"2012 was a year that focused the spotlight on our nation's oil refineries; it showed us the vulnerability of our infrastructure and what can happen to prices at the pump when infrastructure is compromised. We began the year with a BP refinery fire in Cherry Point, Wash., that caused massive injury and damage to the environment," said Gregg Laskoski, also a GasBuddy.com Senior Petroleum Analyst.

With elevated prices across much of the country for prolonged periods, 2012 brought the highest average price ever for U.S. consumers: $3.60 per gallon. For a closer look at the past week.

Talk To Children About Health

•Nearly half (48 percent) indicated they eat meals together as a family every day.

•Sixty-seven percent of parents said their child was responsible for completing a household chore on at least five days during the past week.

•Eighty percent said they spent at least 20 minutes talking with their child each day during the week prior to the survey.

•The main places Kentucky parents turn for information on parenting are the mass media (30 percent); their parents, family and friends (27 percent); and the internet (21 percent).

•When asked where they would look for information to keep their children healthy or to help them when sick, the main places named were health professionals (47 percent); the internet (25 percent); and their parents, family and friends (17 percent).

"Raising a child is important, challenging work — and it is a job that we believe Kentucky parents are committed to doing well. The Kentucky Parent Survey shows that majority of parents are engaged in their child's life — sharing meals, watching television and talking," noted Zepeda, "but parents were a little less likely to report playing actively with their kids. Perhaps we should all resolve to be more physically active with our kids and have a little more fun in 2013."

The Parent Survey was conducted in July and August by the Center for Survey Research at the University of Virginia.

More than 1,000 parents and guardians of children under 18 from throughout the state were interviewed by phone.

The survey has a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percent.

The survey provides a snapshot of parental views on a number of issues including healthcare, school and home life. The final parent survey will be released in late January and will include data from parents on the high school dropout age issue.

Girls Lose First Two Games In Christmas Tourney

The Panther girls started out on top in their first two games in the McLean County Lady Cougar Christmas Tournament last week, but couldn't close out either game.

Lone Oak defeated the Panthers 61-33 in the first game Dec. 27, while Heath came back and knocked the Panthers off 52-44 the following night.

The Panthers started strong against Lone Oak (9-2), which was coming off a win in the Trigg County Christmas Tournament. The Panthers took a 10-5 first quarter lead and stretched it to seven early in the second quarter.

However, a couple of minutes into that second quarter the Purple Flash's offense, fueled by their defense, took over with 23 points. The Panthers turned the ball over nine times during that stretch, and the Purple Flash took a 28-19 halftime lead.

Lone Oak continued pouring in the points in the third quarter and led 53-28 entering the final period.

"We started out excellent against Lone Oak," Panther head coach Erik Peyton said. "We played really good first quarter and about half of a good second quarter. Then we got into some foul trouble and started turning the ball over. Our seven-point lead turned into an 11-point deficit in just a matter of minutes."

The Panthers were led in scoring by Tayler Mills with a game-high 14 points.

"We didn't play smart and weren't focused" during Lone Oak's second quarter charge, Peyton said.

As their record indicates, "Lone Oak is a very good team," the Panther coach added.

In Friday's game against Heath (4-7) the Panthers again had a strong start, this time lasting through the first half.

"It was back and forth the entire game," Peyton said.

The Panthers led 17-13 after the first quarter and 24-21 at half-time.

However, the Pirates' defense held the Panthers to only six points while turning the Panthers over nine times in route to a 37-30 lead after three quarters on their way to a 52-44 win over the Panthers.

"We were within a few points at the end, and they knocked down some free throws," Peyton said.

Tayler Mills again led the Panthers in scoring with 12 points. Pirate sophomore guard Lexie Baer led all scorers with 24 points.

"I saw some positives and negatives," Peyton said. "But now our positives are outweighing our negatives. It wasn't like that at the first of the year. We still have plenty of time to improve."

The Panthers made 16 of 21 free throws for 76 percent. Heath made 14 of 30 for 47 percent.

SENIORS TAKE CONTROL

Girls Turn It On Against Lyons

After losing their first two games in the McLean County Lady Cougar Christmas Tournament by starting with the lead but then falling behind, the Panthers game against Lyon County Saturday took the opposite script.

The Lyons jumped out to a 15-8 first quarter lead. The Panthers' defense improved, holding the Lyons to only four points in the second quarter — the problem was the Panthers only scored four, too, and left the court at halftime down 19-12.

The third quarter was closely contested with the Lyons holding a 29-23 lead after three quarters.

Panther seniors Elizabeth Black and Tayler Mills then took control and led their team to a 43-38 win, the second of the season against eight losses.

The win avenged a 46-35 Lyon County win Dec. 11 at Eddyville.

Lyon County slipped to 4-8 on the season.

"We started out a little slow and got behind early," Panther coach Erik Peyton said.

"But we weren't behind so far we gave up as we have on previous occasions. We knew this was a game we could be competitive in if we stayed focused. We kept battling back and never gave up."

Mills scored a game-high 14 points, while Black added 13 for the Panthers. Lyon County sophomore guard Barrett Blackburn nailed three 3-pointers and paced the Lyons with 13.

The Panthers made 25 of 33 free throws for 76 percent while holding their turnovers to 12.

"It came down to the end and we made more plays at the end of the game," Peyton said. "We knocked down our free throws. Elizabeth was getting fouled in the fourth quarter and knocked down her free throws." Lyon County made six of eight for 75 percent.

"That's a prime example to the girls if we didn't have those free throws, we wouldn't have pulled out the win," Peyton said. "I'm glad they learned how to win. I was very proud of the girls."

Panthers Come Up Short In Tourney

The Panthers opened the Trees 'n Trends Itty-Bitty Christmas Tournament at Christian Fellowship with a 64-59 win over Heritage Academy but then dropped their next two games in the tournament.

On Dec. 21 Whitesville Trinity beat the Panthers 41-38 for the Raiders' second win of the year over the Panthers. The first game was 61-43 Dec. 8 at Panther gym. The two teams meet again Feb. 2 at Whitesville.

The following night, the Panthers dropped a 52-43 decision to Community Christian Academy from Paducah. The Panthers travel to Paducah Jan. 29 to face the Warriors again.

The Panthers fell behind Trinity 12-6 after the first quarter and 28-20 at halftime. The lead stayed about the same through the third quarter as the Panthers faced a 34-27 deficit entering the final quarter.

"We missed a lot of lay ups, and they got up on us in the first quarter," Panther head coach Jeff Miller said.

The Panthers made a charge at the Raiders in the fourth quarter after being behind seven entering the final eight minutes.

"Austin Stevens hit a 3 to tie us up with five or six second left," Miller said. "We tried to press man-to-man full court because we had gotten 10-second calls on them. We tried it again as soon as we scored, but some of our guys got caught up low. They had a run-out, and we fouled them on a lay up with 2.2 seconds

Colton Chapple had a decent look from the corner, but it was a little long."

Panther senior Tré Fambrough led all scorers with 16 points, 10 in the second half.

Trinity's Zach Bayman scored 14 points for the winners.

"It wasn't a great shooting night for us," Miller said. "We hit one 3 the entire night, and we only had nine free throw attempts.

"I told my kids the loss was on me — should have called a time out."

The Panthers made five of nine free throws for 56 percent. Trinity made seven of 16 free throws for 44 percent.

Stories From 2012 Are Varied And Colorful

SPORTS IN KENTUCKY

BOB WATKINS

What can be said of Year 2012?

Doomsday projection for December 21, oops; a general election; Sandy Hook tragedy; Ben Bernanke's Fiscal Cliff?

In sports ...

1. In April, Kentucky basketball fans celebrated an eighth NCAA championship. Oddly, the team never achieved a nickname that stuck.

2. Maybe because fans knew in two months all five starters would be gone.

3. That reality moved a university professor of sports administration to say: "John Calipari is doing what the system allows him to do. I guess in that sense, congratulations. (But) Anyone who thinks that this has anything to do with the collegiate or educational model is flat-out wrong."

4. Western Kentucky's football team stunned Kentucky in overtime in Lexington.

5. In December, the Army-Navy game was another patriotic thriller 17-13, Middies. But Army quarterback Trent Steelman (Bowling Green, Ky.) gave the game its poignancy.

6. In March, Rick Pitino's Louisville team surprised talking heads everywhere by advancing to a Final Four.

7. In December, Kentucky hired a football coach again. First time a head coach, Mark Stoops is a defense-first who hired an offensive coordinator immediately — Neal Brown.

8. In February, Western Kentucky took interim off Ray Harper's job title as basketball coach and the Hilltoppers went on a roll, won the Sun Belt Tournament then a cha-ching win in the NCAA Tournament.

9. Harper's reaction to getting the job was native-son perfect for one who grew up in Muhlenberg County and scored 3,033 points for his high school team at Bremen.

"This is a destination job for me, and there is no place in the country I would rather be. It is an honor to walk into the doors of Diddle Arena each and every day."

10. Coming off a 29-4 season, the Bellarmine Knights were 8-0 by Christmas. Under the media-obsessed Calipari-Pitino radar, coach Scotty Davenport could also boast a 3.0-plus team grade point average.

11. Much talked about, bragged about and celebrated trio of black college coaches at Kentucky, Louisville and Western Kentucky, fizzled. Joker Phillips was fired, Willie Taggart job-jumped Western for South Florida. Charlie Strong stayed at U of L, but not before his boss sweetened his contract.

12. Trinity High School's 13-1 season and 20th football championship was no surprise, but there is a question: With a 41-2 record and state titles in last three seasons, why isn't Bob Beatty's name mentioned as a college coach candidate?

13. Western Kentucky University recognized its equivalent of James Naismith and John Wooden, by naming the Diddle Arena playing surface John Oldham Court.

14. Best college hoops story of 2012? Could be Alex Barlow, walk-on at Butler University.

15. Story of the Year, Legacy Department? Since Kentucky's Mitch Barnhart and John Calipari declared UK the gold standard and created a string of young millionaires, we hear a lot these days about DeMarcus Cousins (suspended), John Wall (not playing), and Daniel Orton, Terrence Jones and DeAndre Liggins demoted to the D-League.

16. Sports Person(s) of the Year. In order, here are mine.

1. Darius Miller, native son who was instrumental in UK's eighth national title. Miller, college graduate, signed a two-year contract with New Orleans Hornets for just under $1 million, first year guaranteed.

2. Anthony Davis. The consummate team player, despite only a year at Kentucky, Davis earned a place in the pantheon of UK basketball legends.

3. Dale Mueller coached Fort Thomas Highlands to its sixth Class 4-A state title in a row.

4. Shoni Schimmele, Louisville basketball. Beyond being team's leader in scoring and assists, Schimmele's stylish play and personal story make her special.

5. A'dia Mathies, Kentucky senior guard, SEC player of the Year in 2012 and All American.

6. Charlie Strong. Louisville's coach has elevated Cardinal football to the threshold of a perch in the Top 10 every year.

7. Teddy Bridgewater, U of L quarterback — a natural.

8. James Quick. Trinity High receiver projects to be the best Kentuckian to the college level since Mr. Football Shaun Alexander headed to Alabama in 1994.

9. Willie Taggart. Coached Western to a winning season. Would rank higher, but he became just another job jumper.

10. Kenneth Faried flourishing. Former Morehead Eagle had 21 points, 15 rebounds for Denver in a win over the Lakers last week.

OTHER ...

17. Western's go-for-it final play gamble in the Little Ceasar's Bowl was reasonable. That star Antonio Andrews was not a part of it, was not.

18. Prep prospect Andrew Wiggins won't fit at Kentucky because, "He doesn't like the spotlight," the kid's mother said last week.

19. John Calipari has recruited another dandy crop of one-and-dones. Thing is, his current players may not be so NBA attractive.

20. High school hoops star Jabar Parker committed to Duke. The kid's father told the Detroit News the reason was coach Mike Krzyzewski. But it was Mom (Lola) who explained best. "I'm not a fan of basketball. I'm a fan of people. I think character is everything and I don't hear anything negative about Coach K in my research."

21. Traditional SEC and Big Ten football door mats Vanderbilt and Northwestern received bowl bids. The Commodores (8-4) to the Music City Bowl; the Wildcats (9-3) to the Gator Bowl.

22. Vanderbilt's basketball team made itself the answer to a trivia question — When Kentucky marched to a 38-2 season and national championship in 2012, who won the Southeastern Conference Tournament?

23. No talk (above a whisper), about an NBA franchise for Louisville. Whew!

24. Personal milestones. In May I celebrated having met a deadline 6,724 times in 40 years writing about sports in Kentucky. How quickly time passed. I am grateful for a (moderately) thick skin and the privilege to share this space with you. Thank you. FINALLY ...

For good health at year's end, I am much grateful.

But just as important, Club 70.

More than half a century ago we seniors left St. Camillus Academy in Corbin. On appropriate dates through 2012 we celebrated a 70th birthday together. All five of us. I am thankful for — Doug Singleton (Pine Knot), Richard Smith (Batavia, Ohio), Warren McNew and Stewart Hardesty (Corbin).

Happy New Year.

And so it goes.

Pioneers Of Television Returns To KET

Emmy-award winning radio personality, television host and producer Ryan Seacrest narrates the third season of "Pioneers of Television," PBS' Emmy-nominated series that brings to life the stories of television's most-beloved stars.

The four-part series premieres Monday, Jan. 21, at 9 p.m. on KET.

The new season's four episodes include "Funny Ladies," "Primetime Soaps," "Superheroes" and "Miniseries."

"Funny Ladies"

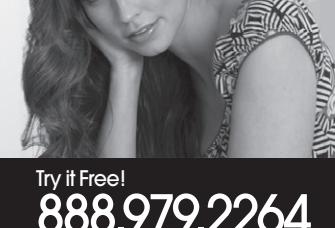

This episode begins with the first standup comedians to appear on television, including Joan Rivers and the late Phyllis Diller, whose final interview was for this episode. "Funny Ladies" also looks at Lucille Ball's breakthrough on "I Love Lucy" and the sitcom stars that followed, including Mary Tyler Moore, Betty White and Marla Gibbs. Variety star Carol Burnett reveals the behind-the-scenes stories of her long-running show.

"Primetime Soaps"

"Dallas" and "Dynasty" kicked off the nighttime soap frenzy in the late 1970s, a phenomenon that continued through the last season of "Knots Landing" in 1993. "Primetime Soaps" offers surprising new details about the legendary "Who Shot J.R." episode of Dallas and reveals the backstage personalities that shaped "Dynasty" and "Knots Landing."

"Superheroes"

"Superheroes" crosses many eras: "Superman" in the 1950s, "Batman" in the '60s, "Wonder Woman" and "The Incredible Hulk" in the '70s, "The Thorn Birds" also provide commentary.

There's a present under the tree that can't be opened until the weekend after Christmas for boys and girls 15 years of age or younger.

It's the Free Youth Hunting and Trapping Week, Dec. 29 through Jan. 4, 2013, open to both resident and non-resident youth.

Youth hunters and trappers are not required to have licenses, permits or hunter education certification, but must be accompanied by an adult.

During the seven-day Free Youth Hunting and Trapping Week, opportunities abound as furbearers may be hunted or trapped and small game hunters may go after rabbits, quail and squirrels.

They may pursue ducks, geese and migratory birds as well. These species may be hunted without state or federal permits, including a trapping license, Kentucky Waterfowl Permit or Federal Waterfowl Stamp. Bag limits and other regulations apply.

"The Free Youth Hunting and Trapping Week is an excellent time to mentor youth," said Karen Waldrop, director of wildlife for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. "The long holiday weekend offers plenty of time to introduce them to a wide range of hunting opportunities."

The special youth hunting and trapping seasons were established in 2003 by the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission.

The bidding:

North East South West

Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass

3 ♠ Pass 4 ♠

Opening lead — jack of diamonds.

When you're declarer in a contract that seems unbeatable, it's incumbent upon you to ask yourself whether any division of the adverse cards can defeat you.

If you think along such lines, you will sometimes avert an unexpected defeat. Consider what happened to South in this deal where the defenders cashed three diamonds before shifting to a heart.

Declarer won with the ace and led a trump to dummy's queen, on which East showed out. A low club to the ace was followed by another trump, dummy winning

West's ten with the king. South now ruffed dummy's nine of clubs and led still another trump, finessing the nine after West followed low.

With only one trump left in each hand and the lead in dummy, declarer cashed the ace but had to lose a heart trick to East at the end and so went down one. However, he should have made the contract.

After declarer wins East's heart return at trick four, he should ask himself, "What can defeat me?" Obviously, the only danger is a 4-0 trump division. If East has the four trumps, the contract is hopeless, so declarer arbitrarily assigns them to West. As we've already seen, the contract fails if South immediately tackles trumps.

Instead, South should cash the ace of clubs before leading a trump to the queen. This might not have the earmarks of an earth-shattering play, but it has the great virtue of making the contract instead of losing it. It protects against West holding four trumps.

When East shows out on the queen of trumps, South ruffs a club and leads another trump, winning West's ten with the king. Another club ruff reduces South to one trump while West and dummy each have two. South now leads his last trump, trapping West's J-4 with dummy's A-9, and finishes by discarding his heart loser on dummy's last trump.

Members attending were Sharon Budd, Charlotte Cooley, Imogene Davis, JoAnn Edwards, Peggy Furgerson, Sally Jackman, Jeanne Knapp, Susan Menser, Eloise Morris, Back and a guest, Cara Knapp, granddaughter of Jeanne Knapp.

The next meeting will be Feb. 19 with Menser as hostess.

Golden Pond Planetarium Will Be Open Year-Round

The Golden Pond Planetarium at Land Between The Lakes (LBL) National Recreation Area will be open all-year beginning Jan. 2, 2013.

This is the first year the planetarium has not needed to close for extended maintenance since the new full-dome digital projec-tor system was installed at the beginning of the 2012 season.

The planetarium will be open seven days a week with various programs throughout each day.

For a complete show schedule, visit www.lbl.org or call 270-924-2233.

LBL Has Special Programs Scheduled During January

Land Between The Lakes will be hosting a variety of special programs in January on the following dates and times:

Jan. 5, 6, 12, 13 and 27

1 to 4:30 p.m.

“Everything Eagles” Van Tour – Golden Pond Visitors Center

Winter is the peak season for bald eagle viewing in LBL. Both year-round resident eagles and visiting winter “snowbirds” are out looking for fish in the lakes. Spend the day visiting some of LBL’s eagle-viewing hot spots during these staff-led tours. We will share tips on how to spot bald eagles in the wild and zoom in with spotting scopes for a closer look.

Cost is $5 children /$7 adults. Registration limited. Reservations and full deposits required. Call 270-924-2020 to reserve your space. Dress for the weather and bring binoculars. Moderate walking may be required.

Saturday, Jan. 19

8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 to 5 p.m.

Nature Watch Series: Winter Eagles & Wildlife Van Tour – Leave from Badgett Theater, Grand Rivers

During the “Winter Birding Hot Spots of LBL” tour from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m., explore the secret wildlife nooks of Land Between The Lakes to pick up some new wildlife sightings and observe nature’s greatest moments. We will search for eagles, loons, the entire color palette of waterfowl, and other Kentucky critters. During the “Northern LBL Eagle Tour” tour from 1:30 to 5 p.m., discover the hidden bays and shorelines where Kentucky’s largest raptor hunts prey, catches ridgetop thermals and begins its courtship rituals.

Morning Session: Winter Birding Hotspots of LBL (Return to Grand Rivers for lunch) Afternoon Session: Northern LBL Eagle Tour. $25/ person for full day. $15/ person for half day. Lunch is on your own. Space is limited. Advanced registration required. Call 270-924-2020 to register.

8:30-11:30 a.m.

“Brunch with the Eagles” River Cruise – Kenlake State Resort Park Marina

Step on-board the CQ Princess for a guided eagle-viewing experience while relaxing in the comforts of a luxury yacht. Cruise down Kentucky Lake and enjoy brunch, while scanning the shores for bald eagles. The CQ Princess offers great viewing from both inside the heated cabin and out on deck.

LBL staff will tell the story of the bald eagle’s recovery and be available to help spot wildlife and answer questions during the trip. Restrooms and hot beverages will also be available. For a view of the yacht, visit www.cqriverside.com

YW Club Holds Christmas Party At Ferguson Home

The Dawson Springs YW Club held its annual Christmas party Dec. 20 at the home of Peggy Ferguson. Members were welcomed by the hostesses, Jeannie Moore, Shirley Menser, Bobbie Kinsolving and Ferguson. The home was decorated for the Christmas season.

A potluck dinner of all the members’ special recipes was served to the following: Pat Bruce, Barbara Thomas, Bonnie Mills, Carolyn Stevens, Janis Perrody, Charlotte Cooley, Kathy Beshears, Melissa Heflin, Trudy Hendrickson, Cassie Bruch, Beth Dillingham, Marvalyn Tolbert, Sharon Messamore, JoAnn Edwards, Sandra Menser, Deborah Coats and the hostesses.

Following the meal, vice president Tolbert presented president Mills a gift from the club. Perfect attendance gifts were presented by Shirley Menser to Mills, Stevens, Moore, Tolbert, Bruce and Sylvia Thomas.

During a short business meeting, the club’s contribution to the Chris McChesney Memorial Scholarship in memory of longtime member Hazel McChesney and a donation to the Dawson Springs Backpack Program in memory of Sue Kimmel were discussed. The YW Club also made a donation to FRYSC this year. Money for the Backpack Program was collected.

A musical game was played, and each member received a small gift from the hostesses. All members exchanged gifts and played Rook. Winners at Rook were Sandra Menser, high; Heflin, second high; Edwards, low; and Messamore, second low.

Door prizes were won by Dillingham, Messamore, Mills, Cooley, Heflin, Hendrickson, Coats, and Sandra Menser.

Three visitors also attended the party this year. They were Scott Dillingham, who took the annual Christmas party picture; Zach Willett, who made special coffees and lattes; and Rascal, Ferguson’s pal who shared in all the fun.
